

Sales-Project Manager

Your sales career illustrates continued success with increasing responsibilities. You love the “thrill of the chase” as well as managing the landscape production crews, and ensuring exceptional customer service.

- People have commented on how you are organized, detailed, and motivated to exceed goals.
- Throughout your sales and/or management career, others have turned to you for your leadership, horticultural and/or landscape construction knowledge.
- Knowing the importance of ongoing and incremental learning, you regularly read business books or attend workshops. You are a university or college graduate.
- You may have worked or owned a small, medium or large business, but today you desire autonomy and flexibility to accomplish career goals within a positive, stable and growing company.
- Your sales or supervisory success has allowed you to earn $100,000+ in the past, and you desire a result driven compensation package.
